

ABSTRACT

A method for refreshing data in a circuit element included in a dynamic register. A static loop is coupled to the circuit element as a feedback path from the output terminal to the input terminal of the circuit element. A control signal is 5 provided to the static loop. The static loop is activated via the control signal to refresh the data in the circuit element.